Re: Testimonial for Mr. Eric Ng, Passioninlearning

I will like to share my thoughts about Mr. Eric Ng, educator and author of Passioninlearning.

It all started when I was talking to my mother in 2020 about getting a different tuition because during that time, my Maths was very poor and I needed help. My mother was scrolling through Facebook when she came across the Passioninlearning website. She immediately talked to me about it. I was scared at first because I never had a private tutor before but now, I have no regrets. At first, I took only Math. I found the lessons very engaging, entertaining and fun. The sessions were also very useful and detailed and I was able to have a deep impression of whatever was imparted to me.

Upon seeing that my Math acumen was enhanced significantly, I decided to sign up for Science tuition with Mr. Eric too. During that period of time, my science grades were dropping and Mr. Eric identified that my way of studying for Science and methods of attempting MCQs and OEQs were flawed. Hence, he worked on that and my science grades and knowledge saw substantial improvement.

During my PSLE year in 2021, I took up English with Mr. Ng too. He was astute to detect that I was very weak in certain aspects of English and got me to work on that immediately. I used to score 4 or 5 out of 10 for grammar, but every since being mentored by Mr. Eric, the grammar portion has always been full marks. What Mr. Eric taught was not simply just the technical parts of language but rather, to inculcate a feel towards English, which is abstract and helped me greatly.

Most importantly, in administering English, Maths and Science, Mr. Eric was able to have a strategic view of my style of learning. For example. I have not been able to perform well under examination pressure. Mr. Eric, through his 25 years of experience, deduced that I might have had occurrences of blackout during examinations. He confidently simulated examination conditions during one of the sessions in the hope of triggering a similar blackout, and succeeded in doing so. Consequently, he counselled me on how to work under compelling stress, which helped me greatly in overcoming such pitfalls.

Mr Eric also worked very closely with my mother to ensure that I did not veer off course. After each session, Mr Eric would, without fail, provide feedback to my mother to keep her updated about my progress and aptitude towards work.

Sessions with Mr Eric has also felt nothing like tuition, and I always looked forward to seeing him, even after my examinations. This is most likely due to the strong bond we have and I know he is someone I can count on in times of need. As I move on to a secondary school, I am continuing my endeavours with him, hoping to scale greater heights!

Yours sincerely,
